

Mental Health Reform

Promoting Improved Mental Health Services

An Taoiseach,
Mr Simon Harris, TD
Government Buildings
Merrion St Upper
Dublin 2

25 September 2024

Dear Taoiseach,

As members and allies of Mental Health Reform, we call on the Irish Government to prioritise funding for our mental health services in the upcoming budget.

After you became Taoiseach, you said that you “know what it feels like when you feel your voice is not being heard.” For years, Mental Health Reform, and our members have called for appropriate funding for mental health services in Ireland. Despite repeated calls for investment, only 5.6% of the total health budget is allocated to mental health. This is significantly below the 10% recommended in Sláintecare. We, too, feel our voices are not being heard.

Persistent underfunding is having a long-term impact on the mental health system. Ireland ranks highest in Europe for difficulty accessing mental health services. There are long delays for treatment, inconsistent standards of care, and severe staffing shortages. Children and families in particular are unable to access appropriate or timely intervention. Delivery of gender-sensitive mental health services as set-out in Sharing the Vision is also crucial.

There has been a recurrent lack of new development funding for the HSE’s national clinical programmes in mental health. This has limited the availability of life-saving treatment for people with eating disorders, psychosis, dual diagnosis and other complex needs.

Currently, only 1% of health expenditure is allocated to preventative measures. However, any investment in prevention can yield two to four times the economic return. The voluntary and community sector is committed to improving mental health outcomes through prevention and early intervention. Investment in these services is key to preventing the development of complex mental health difficulties and reducing the need for costly acute care. The sector is ideally situated to assist in the expansion of mental health services in the community, ensuring access to support at the earliest point possible.

In our pre-budget submission, Mental Health Reform recommends an investment of an additional €120M for mental health in Budget 2025. This includes an additional €25M for voluntary and community providers and an additional €10M to resource youth mental health services to support children and young people.

As the Programme for Government draws to a close, you have a unique opportunity to leave a positive legacy. The mental health of our nation is at stake. Let’s build a mental health system we can be proud of—one that listens, acts, and delivers.

The time is now, Taoiseach. Those in need of mental health services and supports can no longer wait.

Yours sincerely,
